

ANNOTATION

Korogod M. Formation of the creative class in Ukraine on example of IT field
Master's dissertation in specialty 8.03010101 - Sociology.

Dissertation studies the specialist of information technologies field in Ukraine as representatives of the creative class according to the concept of R. Florida. The creative class is considered as a social group of the population which is involved in post-industrial economy and is a driving force of innovation and economic growth.

In the thesis the notion and concepts of the creative class are researched; vision of creative class among local researchers is considered; the place of creative class in the structure of modern Ukrainian society on the example of information technology field is analyzed, as well as the factors that facilitate and hinder its development. Possible prospects of the creative class in the context of socio-economic development of Ukraine are outlined.