

Coursework in Political Science: conflictological approach

This credit module is aimed to develop students' analytical skills in evaluation, analysis, and management of political processes through conflictological approach.

The main tasks of studying the credit module "Coursework in Political Science: Conflictological approach" are:

- to demonstrate an ability to determine the relevance, object, and subject of the topic;
- to set and solve a number of scientific problems;
- to discover the skill of working with scientific sources;
- to present the result of the research.