

Demography

The purpose of the credit module is to form students' ability to use statistical methods to analyze demographic processes and phenomena.

According to the requirements of the curriculum, students must demonstrate the following learning outcomes after mastering the credit module:

knowledge:

- the content of the main categories and concepts of statistical science;
- the content of the main categories and concepts of demography, specific methods of demography;
- capabilities of computer tools and Internet resources for data analysis of demographic processes and structures skills:

- apply in practice the methods of statistical research;
- calculate statistical indicators of demographic processes;
- identify quantitative patterns of demographic processes;
- use computer tools, databases and Internet resources to analyze demographic processes and structures.