

Introduction to the sociological profession.

The discipline is aimed at forming students' ideas about real professional activity, mastering effective methods of educational activity, as well as socio-psychological assistance to students in adapting to higher education, educating students in a sense of responsibility by building an adequate idea of the sociologist's profession; formation of students' ideas and expansion of information about the chosen profession. Students gain knowledge of the specific features of the sociologist's professional activity, requirements for theoretical training and practical activities of the sociologist, features of the sociological approach to the study of society, the difference between sociology and other sciences dealing with the study of social phenomena and processes, the importance of sociology, the structure of sociological knowledge.