

Fundamentals of Academic Writing

The program of the discipline "Fundamentals of Academic Writing" corresponds to the curriculum of sociologists-bachelors, provides an opportunity to get a clear idea of the principles of academic writing, requirements and methodology of academic writing, prepares students for independent research and writing papers, term papers and dissertations. The course "Fundamentals of Academic Writing" is an important part of the study of fundamental and professionally-oriented disciplines. It lays the foundation for future sociologists to gain in-depth knowledge of the methodology and methods of writing academic texts for their further application in practice as undergraduates, graduate students, teachers of sociology, researchers, experts.

The main tasks of studying the credit module "Fundamentals of Academic Writing" are:

- to form an idea of the basic concepts of the training course;
- to form an idea of the system of research methods;
- to form an idea of the basics of academic integrity;
- to know and to follow the requirements requirements for writing scientific papers in higher education, the rules of registration of references to sources and bibliographic lists;
- to implement the principles of ensuring academic integrity in scientific research;
- to organize own academic activity on writing of scientific texts;
- to find scientific sources, analyze them and correctly refer to them in scientific work;