

Gender Conflicts & Family Mediation.

Gender conflicts have a special place in the diversity of social conflicts. Gender conflicts - conflicts of gender roles and contradictions between expectations and reality in their implementation - are integral attributes of social development. The course will provide an opportunity to identify, diagnose and regulate gender conflicts.

By mastering the content of the course, students will have the opportunity to analyze the historical background and values of gender conflicts, ways of resolving the conflict, based on the latest sociological research. The teacher will provide a comprehensive overview of the diverse approaches to the definition of modern gender conflicts and will characterize the social causes of their occurrence and features of manifestation in various areas.

Mediation is an informal but well-structured procedure for resolving a conflict with the participation of a neutral mediator who supports the parties in reaching a mutually beneficial solution. The basic principles of mediation is equality of the parties, impartiality, confidentiality and voluntariness allow in the process of resolving the conflict to reach a consensus with maximum regard to the wishes and requirements of the conflicting parties (win-win).

The main tasks of studying the credit module " Gender Conflicts & Family Mediation " are:

- to form an idea of the conceptual sociological approaches that underlie the theory of gender conflict;
- to form an idea of the features of the formation of theories of gender socialization as one of the sources of gender conflicts;
- to understand the essence of the mediation process as an alternative way of resolving disputes;
- to use of modern models, stages, mediation techniques, based on both theoretical principles and the empirical experience of practicing mediators;
- to model algorithms of their behavior in order to ensure the effective implementation of gender rights and opportunities;
- to implement in practice modern strategies for regulating gender conflicts in society;