

Sociology of Innovation and Conflict

The objective of the educational component is to study the key social problems of creating / diffusioning and consolidating innovations and conflict; product, logistics, communication, organizational, institutional innovation, as well as the ability to use the basic techniques of sociological and economic rationality for innovation and conflicts connects with.

The task of the discipline is the formation of students' ability to conduct research activities, including analysis of problems, setting goals and objectives, choosing the method and methods of research, as well as assessing its quality; work with information: find, evaluate and use information from various sources, necessary for solving scientific and professional problems; to use in professional activity basic knowledge in the field of natural and social-behavioral sciences; to formulate goals, to set specific tasks of scientific research in various spheres of sociology with the use of advanced domestic and foreign experience in conducting fundamental and applied scientific research.

The subject of the discipline is the sociological understanding of the phenomenon of innovation, methodology and scope of key sociological concepts of innovation, their institutional and grid contexts. Interdisciplinary links: "Sociology of Innovation and Conflict" is related to the disciplines: "Modern Sociological Theories 1,2", "Political Science: Conflict Approach", "Theory and History of Conflict Resolution", "Sociology of Modernity and modernization".