

Sociology of security and personal development

The purpose of the discipline is to form students' abilities (LO):

- to a critical and systematic vision of the relationship between the processes of socialization and individuation, to model the critical moments in these interactions at the present stage of human development;
- to build prognostic maps of mutual adaptation of communities and individuals in the contradictory unity of innovation and continuity, adaptation and transformation, creativity as its essential components;
- to the analysis, synthesis of various information on the processes of socialization in the context of modern libertarian trends of "freedom from everything", "privatization of everything", "superfluous welfare state", only a separate identity;
- to research comparative studies on the possibilities and limitations of the contribution of individual subjects to the renewal of the social system.
- prevention of the choice of individuals and groups of destructive deviant behavioral patterns in the processes of socialization and individuation;

The main tasks and skills (PO) of studying the discipline "Sociology of Security and Personal Development" are:

- acquaintance of students with the basic provisions of the theory and practice of development of principles and tools of an estimation and measurement of individual psychological features of the person;
- mastering the importance of the sociological approach in considering the achievements of philosophical and anthropological research to increase the effectiveness of both individual life and social practice in general;
- providing practical work of future sociologists, conflictologists, mediation specialists, methods of prompt receipt and analysis of various information of psychological and socio-cultural format.